

Book Club Game 4

Snowball Fight

Snowball Fight involves some action and noise, and will make your Book Club meeting lively and exciting. This activity is great for revising plot and characters, or you can work with quotes from the books you are reading.

Procedure:

You will need two teams and lots of sheets of paper. Divide the class into two teams and ask students to write one question about the books you've read this term on each piece of paper, then crumple them into balls (the snowballs). Then you start the fight, by getting the two teams have to throw their balls at each other across the classroom. They get 1 point for each snowball they can catch, and 3 points for each snowball they can also answer. In a variation of the game they can write quotes instead of questions on the snowballs and the catcher has to identify the book and the character, give extra points if you wish if they can provide context.
